

Sprotbrough and Parish Council begins and ends with YOU...

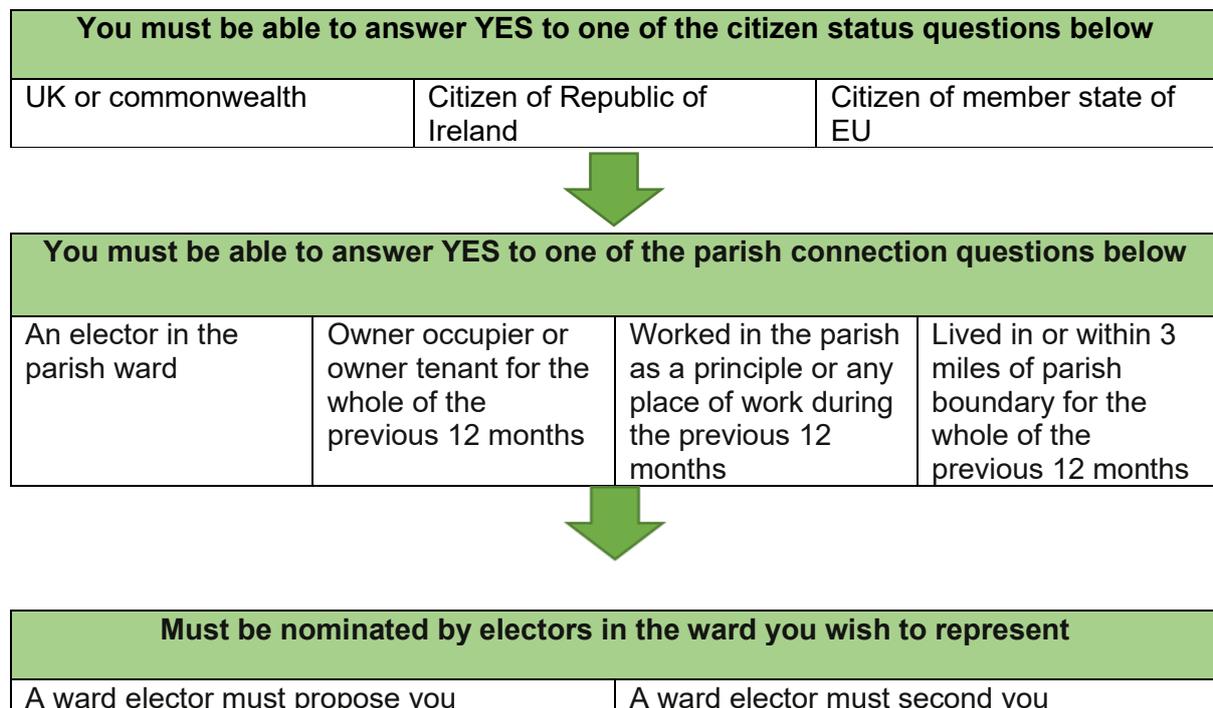

What is a Parish Council?

A parish council is a local authority that makes decisions on behalf of the people in Sprotbrough and Cusworth. It is the level of government closest to the community, with Doncaster Council above it in the hierarchy. As the authority closest to the people, Sprotbrough and Cusworth Parish Council is the first-place people will go with concerns or ideas. For this reason, we are a vital part of the community and we want to encourage you to engage with us.

Elected Representatives

Sprotbrough and Cusworth Parish Council has 17 elected representatives who serve as Parish Councillors; they are democratically elected local representatives; they have a unique and privileged position and the potential to make a real difference to people's lives. Once elected, Councillors sit on the council for a maximum of four years. If Councillors wish to stay in post they can stand for re-election (all seats in the Parish will be up for election in May 2021).

Eligibility to stand as a parish councillor

Why become a Parish Councillor?

You could be the fresh new talent that Sprotbrough and Cusworth Council is looking for. Are you ready to help change the face of local government? No other role gives you a chance to make such a huge difference to quality of life for people in your local area. The diversity of local councils is their strength. Each can make a unique response to the needs of their community with a sensitivity that is more difficult for principal authorities to achieve. The job of Sprotbrough and Cusworth Parish Council is to represent the interests of the whole community; understanding the needs of different groups in the community (such as young and elderly people) is an important part of a Councillors role. As a councillor, you have a responsibility to be well-informed, especially about diverse local views. In recognition of the need for a vibrant local democracy, the Localism Act 2011 sought to decentralise administrative power from the state towards localities, empowering communities to enable them to make better responses to community problems, and over the course of the past few years Town and Parish Councils have found themselves taking on many more responsibilities. As we move forward, the public and the Councillors who represent them have an opportunity to engage with key stakeholders in a bottom-up approach to devolution with local solutions to local problems, civic participation and an increased legitimacy of the Parish Council and its role.

What matters to you in your local area? Is it the state of the local park, the need for more activities for young people, improving services for older people, making the roads safer or ensuring that local businesses can thrive? You may already be involved in local affairs and want to take the next step or you may be looking for a worthwhile and rewarding way to help your local community. Whatever needs changing in your neighbourhood, you could be just the person to change it by becoming a Parish Councillor.

You may already have an idea of the type of people who stand as local councillors, but this image could be outdated.

Groups made up of diverse individuals tend to make better informed decisions. It is important that councils have councillors who not only reflect and represent the communities they serve, but also have a broad range of skills and life experience.

You don't have to be highly educated or have a profession, skills gained through raising a family, caring for a sick or disabled relative, volunteering or being active in faith or community groups can be just as valuable. While you don't need any special qualifications to be a councillor, having or being able to develop the following skills, knowledge and attributes will help you in the role:

✓ Communication skills; these include listening and interpersonal skills, public speaking skills, the ability to consider alternative points of view and to negotiate, mediate and resolve conflict.

✓ Problem solving and analytical skills; this includes being able to get to the bottom of an issue and to think of different ways to resolve it, including considering the advantages and disadvantages of each option.

✓ Team working; being able to work with others in meetings and on committees and being able to complete any tasks that you agree to do on time. ✓ Organisational skills; being able to plan and manage your time, keep appointments and meet deadlines.

✓ Ability to engage with your local community; you may have to make yourself available through meetings, the media, the internet, public forums, debates and on the telephone. Councils are particularly keen to encourage people from under-represented groups to get involved, such as younger people, people from England's many ethnic communities and disabled people; women are also under-represented on local councils

Other ways to get involved

All our meetings are open to the public and there is an opportunity at each for members of the public to raise concerns and ask questions. There is also an annual meeting which all parishioners are invited to attend; this is an open forum meeting and much less formal than our usual monthly committee meetings. Residents can contact the Council via telephone, email or via social media and can also call into the Council office within the Goldsmiths Centre on Sprotbrough Road. Any formal communication received by the Council will be received at a public meeting for consideration. Residents can bring to the attention of the council anything that concerns them, either directly or through the Clerk. If matters raised are not the responsibility of the council, the Clerk can bring them to the attention of the proper authority. The contact details of all Parish Councillors are available on the council website and by contacting the office, as well as being published in the Annual Report; residents can raise issues with Parish Councillors which will then be brought before the Council. We actively seek the views of members of the public via survey, surgery and via our events; we encourage you to engage and to tell us how we can improve local participation. All meetings are advertised on the council notice boards and via our website and social media pages so you will always know what your Parish Council is considering by way of the agenda and associated papers. You will also always know what your Parish Council agrees as minutes of meetings are published online and available for public inspection.
